

an eye for aesthetics

Every new patient of Dr. Brent J. Smith is asked the same question: What motivated you to pursue facial plastic surgery? After almost 20 years in practice, this experienced surgeon realized that while many patients want to look good to others, they first must look good to themselves.

"Undergoing facial plastic surgery has to be something that patients do for themselves. They are the first person they see in the mirror every morning." Dr. Smith's concern is always for his patients, who appreciate the manner in which they are treated and the confidentiality of the practice's private waiting area. He has spent his career focusing on his patients and on incorporating the latest and most effective techniques and procedures that will maximize outcomes. The practice's fully accredited surgical suite and two operating rooms are outfitted with eight different lasers, which Dr. Smith utilizes for eyelid lifts, facelifts and other procedures, either as a minimally-invasive treatment or in combination with surgery. "I see the future of cosmetic surgery being changed by lasers, not only by decreasing bleeding during surgery but also in achieving more youthful skin," he says. Dr. Smith's goal is to bring a sense of facial harmony and balance to each patient he sees. Dr. Smith frequently instructs other facial plastic surgeons on advanced and minimally-invasive facial procedures. He has been featured twice in People magazine and he was chosen as Denver's "Extreme Makeover" facial plastic surgeon. "My father told me to find a job that you truly enjoy and you will never have to work another day in your life. Facial plastic surgery is that job for me."

INSIDE INFORMATION

CONTOUR THREADLIFTS™—ASK DR. SMITH

Q: THE SKIN ON MY FACE IS STARTING TO SAG BUT I'M NOT READY FOR A FACELIFT. IS THERE A LESS INVASIVE PROCEDURE THAT CAN GIVE A SUBTLE LIFT TO MY APPEARANCE?

A: Yes. If you've looked in the mirror, lifted up the skin on your face and wished it would stay there, now there is a new rejuvenation technique for you to consider. The Contour ThreadLift lifts sagging tissue without the invasiveness and recovery time of a traditional facelift. The procedure is performed under local anesthesia with virtually no incisions or resulting scars. That translates to less pain and a quicker recovery than with a traditional facelift. The Contour ThreadLift is the first FDA-cleared product of its kind and is only performed by specially-trained surgeons. Contour Threadlifts are uniquely designed barbed sutures, used to elevate the brow, midface, jowl or neck. The Contour ThreadLift may be used in combination with other procedures to achieve a customized, individual result. I have performed several hundreds of these procedures, helping my satisfied patients achieve the refreshed, youthful look they desire.
